La pièce qui précède était la traduction de la lettre suivante :

* KWENATC WABIKON, c'est-à-dire la belle fleur, c'est le nom que donnèrent les Algonquins, en 1848, à M. D. Granet, qui devint plus tard, en 1856, supérieur du Séminaire de Montréal, et qui est mort, vivement regretté, en 1866.

MES CHERS ENFANTS,

Salut en Notre-Seigneur !

Voici un excellent livre composé en votre langue par un de vos anciens missionnaires* tout dévoué au bien des diverses tribus de votre nation. Il est tiré des divines Ecritures, et l'on y raconte l'histoire du peuple de Dieu avec des réflexions pleines de sagesse et très propres à vous guider dans le chemin de la vertu.

Vous le lirez sans doute avec empressement et beaucoup d'attention, et ainsi vous en tirerez un très grand profit. C'est ce doux espoir qui a porté vos pères d'aujourd'hui † qui vous aiment et veulent vous aimer toujours comme vos pères d'autrefois, à le faire imprimer pour votre usage.

* Jean-Claude MATHEVET, prêtre de St-Sulpice, missionnaire au lac des Deux-Montagnes, de 1746 à 1781. Les Algonquins lui donnèrent le nom de WAKWI, c'est-à-dire le Ciel, et les Iroquois, dont il savait aussi la langue, le nom de TAIORHENSERE, c'est-à-dire le jour vient.

Le vénérable auteur de l'Histoire sainte a également composé la Vie de Jésus, qui a été imprimée en 1861, et de laquelle doit paraître bientôt une nouvelle édition qui, depuis longtemps déjà, est ardemment désirée par les différentes tribus de langue algonquine, et surtout par leurs missionnaires.

† On trouve ci-dessus, au bas de la page III, les noms indiens des missionnaires dont il est ici question. Ce que c'est que Nijkwenatcanibic, a été dit dans la préface du Lexique de la langue iroquoise. MEIAWASIKETC, c'est-à-dire l'illuminateur, tel fut le nom donné à M. Isidore TALLET, qui, depuis peu, avait succédé à Nijkwenatcanibic dans la charge de missionnaire des Algonquins.

Daignent, mes chers enfants, le Seigneur Jésus et sa sainte Mère, vous en faire goûter délicieusement la lecture !

C'est la grâce que demandera souvent pour vous votre père bien désireux de votre bonheur,

DOMINIQUE GRANET,
Sup. du Séminaire.
